Invitation to the IOTA Webinar “Financial Payment Providers and the Challenges for Tax Recovery”

Dear Colleagues,

The Intra-European Organisation of Tax Administrations (IOTA) is organising a webinar on “Financial Payment Providers and the Challenges for Tax Recovery”, which will be broadcast live from IOTA Studio in Budapest via the Microsoft Teams platform on 24 April 2025 starting at 11:00 (CEST) and finishing at 12:30 (CEST).

The e-money institutions that are providing services such as prepaid cards, digital wallets, and mobile payment systems have become essential players in today’s digital economy.

The widespread use of digital payment services, both domestic and cross-border, has the potential to undermine the effectiveness of traditional tax collection methods. Tax administrations typically rely on their ability to seize funds from domestic bank accounts to collect tax liabilities, but this is complicated when individuals and businesses utilize digital services that transcend national borders. This growing reliance of individual taxpayers and businesses on digital financial services creates new complexities for tax debt recovery, as tax authorities may find themselves with limited jurisdiction over transactions conducted through international or non-bank digital platforms.

This IOTA webinar will provide an essential platform for tax administrations to explore and discuss these emerging challenges that digital financial services present to tax collection and debt recovery. By delving into the complexities of digital payment systems and their implications for tax debt recovery, this webinar will offer tax authorities valuable insights into how they can enhance their capabilities in ensuring efficient tax collection and enforcement in the face of evolving financial technologies.

More specifically, this webinar will focus on:

- Challenges posed by Financial Payment Providers for tax recovery.
- Exploring how tax administrations can collaborate with e-money institutions to enhance debt recovery processes.
- Strategies to mitigate risks related to the misuse of digital financial services for tax evasion or asset concealment.
